

Kindergarten News

October 29, 2007

Please remember there is no school on Thursday, November 1st. It is one of our two Parent-Teacher Conference days; the other day is November 6th.

Literacy Corner

This week the children will continue to talk about healthy food. We have discussed the vocabulary words of vitamin, breakfast and supper. This week we will talk about the meaning of health, enjoy and need. We will continue to work on syllables and rhymes at meeting. The children will look for /c/ words in books and poems. We will also continue to talk about how readers find the important information in books.

Centers

At centers the children will be finding the initial sounds in more Fall and pumpkin words. They will also be pounding out syllables in words. The children will begin to meet with me in small guided reading groups. We will read from a selection of "little books". I will focus on different skills each week. The children will also work on finishing their paper-mache pumpkin.

Math

In math we will work observing patterns in the real world and the children will make patterns using fall objects. They will also get to use fall manipulatives to count practice quantity. The children will even get to play some fun Pumpkin Math games focusing on following directions.

Classroom Supplies

We are in need of a few things to get through the next couple weeks. We are looking for baby wipes and paper towels, also if anyone wants to send in some hand sanitizer that would be great!

Bulbs

All Kindergarteners are planting bulbs tomorrow at Beal so if you haven't sent in any bulbs and would like to help out, please send them in on Tuesday. Thanks.

Community Sing-Along Reminder

Halloween

We will not be celebrating Halloween, as it is a district policy. However, if you would like to send pictures of your child in their costume, we will share them at meeting.

Have a great week and be safe if you go trick-or-treating.
